The city of Karlstad

Karlstad, the county town of Värmland, is situated in a delta on the northern shore of Lake Vänern where the river Klarälven branches into many arms before flowing into Lake Vänern.

The city has just over 80,000 inhabitants and lies at the heart of Scandinavia with Gothenburg, Stockholm, Copenhagen and Oslo within easy reach. It offers the pleasures of a small town and yet has the facilities of a city.

Research

Karlstad is home to many high-expertise companies and the town is one of Scandinavia's main centres for consultants in the tele and data communications industry.

The city is also a research and development centre for machinery used in the pulp, paper and process industries. It has excellent communications both by road and rail, and the university provides it with a well-educated workforce.

Recreation

From the recreational viewpoint, Karlstad has a lot to offer, from outdoor activities and sports to culture and entertainment. On the shores of Lake Vänern, just outside Karlstad, lies Skutberget, a recreational amenity which has bathing facilities, a running and ski track and other training facilities. In the winter, it is ideal for cross-country skiing and in the summer, for sail-boarding and canoeing. Sunne Ski Centre, about an hour's drive from Karlstad, has a number of downhill and slalom pistes.

Culture

The city offers plenty of entertainment with plays, operas and ballets being performed at the beautiful old theatre. The city boasts a large library, several art galleries and museums; and there are, of course, cinemas, restaurants and places to dance. Karlstad has more restaurants per inhabitant than any other Swedish town.
